Where the living language of music is taught in a family environment

Welcome to SW London Music School where the living language of music is taught in a family and enjoyable environment. I am passionate about music education and committed to giving each student Adult or Children the very best tuition, support and encouragement. As a qualified and experienced teacher I am committed to sharing the joy of music with students of all ages and stages whether they be complete beginners or more experienced. I am also able to serve the wider community in schools through my music services to schools programme.

The school has been established out of one of Ireland's leading music schools 'The Irish Harp Centre Music School' based in Limerick and Dublin. Lessons are just not for children!' we have and welcome many adults of all ages and stages. Lessons in your own home are possible at no extra charge both before or after School as well as weekends. Daytime tuition is also available for adults who prefer it.

I look forward to welcoming you to our extended musical family
