Professional highly qualified piano Accompanist offers friendly, patient, holistic piano Accompanying for children and adult learners, beginners to adults - Any genre of music, classical, pop music, cross-over and musical theatre After over 10 years' teaching experience, Reina started London Piano Studio to offer students the most effective tuition to meet individual needs. She also coaches conductors, singers, ensembles and dancers to develop their professional skills. Reina was introduced to music at her very early age, studied with Yukiko Deto in Osaka and gained a Bachelor degree from Osaka University of Music. Following to complete her degree, she was selected to perform at the Young Artist Concert in Osaka. During the time at University, Reina had been interested in modern and contemporary music as much as classical repertoires. She passionated to explore and put a spot light on musics unknown. And during the time of exploring, she grew her interest of performing music in her unique way, new from what has been done. Meanwhile, her passion and interest were expanded to other creative genre and that led her to form a performance group with fellow musicians and artists to make a creative stage show to explore a new style to present classic music to audiences. In 2005, the group made a successful debut at Kyoto's Art Complex 1928, and were invited to perform in the opening series of the new arts venue, Creative Centre Osaka. Soon after, Reina moved to London where she completed her Postgraduate study at Royal Academy of Music, studied with Pascal Nemirovski and William Fong. Since then, she started perform as a soloist and a chamber music player as well as an accompanist in UK. But a part from performing as a pianist, her passion of creating and interest of music led her to expand other studies. She also studied jazz piano with Atsuko Hashimoto, Sara Dhillon and Barry Green, and studied composition with Grigorio Giamougiannis. Forming up improvisation performance duet with her fellow violinist, they released an album, recorded in UK and USA. One of their recent album received the Independent Music Award.
